Mr. Shivers Shivering.

Conductor—Thermometer at zero, sir! You for-got your overcoat, and the way you shiver you are next door to freezing.

Shivers—Car seems like an ice-house this morning, and I guess I can't wait any longer for my overcoat.

Conductor—Wait for an overcoat? What do you mean! Do you expect your grand-father to leave you one?

Shivers-Yo'd are smart this morning, No -Yo'd are smart this morning, No, kir. I pay for all I get; but in these times I must make my money go as far as possible, and so I have waited for the 'break in prices' before buying my overcoat. By waiting until the stores are making up their spring stock, when they are anxious to move heavy goods out of the way, I always save considerable in buying.

Conductor—Well, that's so, I believe, for I see it anniounced that MOSSLER BROS., though they have but one price, have remarked their goods at lower prices in order to sell down and keep their hands employed.

Shivers—Then I shall go there at once, for I know What they say in their advertisements is true to a dot. When they say they have nearly 4.00 overcoats it is so; and if they say release down from they depend they say prices are down, you may depend on it they are down. One price with them is one price and no dodg-ing, and that's what I like.

Conductor—All right. 37 E. Washington street. This is the spot.

COMMISSIONERS' EXPENDITURES. Of the reports submitted by the several ommittees, the following were important: From Committee on County and Township Business, approving H. B. 108, limiting the power of the County Commissioners, and restricting them to an expenditure of $20, on without dirst taking a vote of the people.

Mr. Kenneday, of Montgomery, moved to amend by reducing the amount to $10,000.

A discussion followed, in which many deprecated the idea of restricting the Commissioners to so small an amount as $10,000, which is that the frequent electrics.

many dissensions between the people of dif-ferent sections of a county. On the other TELEGRAPH NEWS hand, it was claimed that Commissioners are liable to be extravagant, and that limiting them to $10,000 would place the whole mat-ter of large expenses in the hands of the people, Pending the discussion, Mr. Kenneday withdrew his amendment, and Mr. Bruce moved to amend by restricting Comfinissioners to half of one per cent. on the assessed valuation of the real and personal property of the county.

Report and amendment laid upon table and made special order for Tuesday afternoon next.

ASSESSMENT OF LANDS

From same committee, approving House bill No. 3, amending assessment law, pro-viding that the next appraisement of proper-ty be made in 1879 and every sixth year thereafter, and for the appointment of Assessors by the County Commissioners. Pending its engrossment a prolonged and prosy discussion ensued, resulting in an amendment providing that the next appraisement of property be made in 1680 and every fifth vealed.

[From the New York Tribune.] In 1857 it was widely reported that Simon Cameron overcame a clear Democratic majority in the Legislature on joint ballot, by purchasing three Democratic members, named Wagenseller, Maneer and Lebo. John W. Forney was the Democratic caucus nom-inee, and had as good reason to regard his election as certain as Mr. Wallace. who was nominated last Thursday. When the roll was called in joint convention, however, the three purchased Democrats voted for Cameron, and their votes elected him. The feeling of hatred provoked by their apostasy was so intense that no hotel in Harrisburg would entertain them. They all disappeared from

In the winter of 1863 Cameron was again a candidate for Senator. He had resigned to take the War Department folio in 1861, and had subsequently given that up for the mission to Russia, which he soon found not congenial to his tastes. The Democrats, as a result of the reverses which the Republicans persons and papers.

Mr. Friedley, of Lawrence, moved to strike out provision for employment of experts. On motion to lay on the table ayes single member to deprive them of the Sena-torship. Buckalew was their nominee. On the positive assurance that he had secured one Democratic vote, Cameron was given the Republican caucus nomination the night before the election. His own statement to this effect was not deemed sufficient. He was required to name the man-it was one Boyer, of Clearfield county—and a committee was sent to him to ascertain if he really intended to vote for Cameron.

Meanwhile the Democrats had a vigilance committee watching the movements of their sent to him to ascertain if he really intended to vote for Cameron. Meanwhile the Democrats had a vigilance committee watching the movements of their opponents. When Boyer left his room to go to the State house on the day of the election he was met by two Democratic members who took him by the arms and marched him through the streets and the capitol grounds, as they went that he would represent the second of the read it. Tell, Ete. Washington, January 21.-The published statement that the President has directed Sheridian to place a company of Federal troops at the disposal of Governor Ames, to prevent disturbances at Vicksburg is authortatively denied. Irwin, the recusant witness in the Pacific Mail investigation promises to make the long looked for developments to-day. It is elieved that he will account for every cent of the money expended as he does not relish returning to jail.

IRWIN TELLS.

The Ways and Means Committee room was crowded this morning to hear the testimony of Irwin. The witness promptly apmony of Irwin. The witness promptly appeared and said he did not wish to go far this morning. He did not feel well, but thought he could give full particulars to-morrow. In answer to questions by Dawes he gives the following list of persons he employed to assist him in getting the subsidy through and appropriate roll with the country and area. Charles Abert 7,000 amounts paid each: Charles Abert, $7,000, A. J. Averill, $10,000, James G. Bennett $10,-000, E. H. Cormack, $2,500, A. B. Corwin, $3,000.

H. G. Fant $12,000, J. W. Forney, $26,000, F.
A. Hatch $20,000, J. R. Ingham $10,000, A.
W. Randall $10,000, J. H. Rice $25,000, Wm.
B. Shaw $15,000, C. Sherrell $500, J. G. Shoemacker $300,000, A. H. Whiting $100,000. Payment was also made to Wm. Moran the amount of which witness does not recollect. The above list does not differ materially from that furnished by Abert, who seemed to be Irwin's purchasing agent. Witness knew that W. S. King and Richard C. Parsons had been employed to assist the subsidy, but were employed by Stockwell. Boyd and Husey, two doorkeepers of the House, were not employed by witness, but he knew they were working for the company. When he made his answer, stating that no officer of this House had received any money for the subsidy, he forget altogether about the employment of Boyd & Husey. He did not, however, fully regard them as officers of the House.

The examination adjourned until to-morrow.

No Immediate Danger of. War-The Louisiana Difficulty-The Advance in Freights, etc.

NEW YORK, January 21 .- The Herald's Washington special says the President's special message, asking an appropriations for ea coast defences is construed by the friends of Cuban independence to mean war. It does not, however, mean actual hostilities, and there is no immediate danger of war with Spain. A prominent Republican says we are not now prepared for war. The Spansh ironclads are more than a match for ours We shall have no war with Spain for a year

The Times's Washington special says: Except for our system of torpedo defenses, which can hardly be said to have had sufficient trial, the iron clads of England, Ger many, France, or Spain, could enter any port of the United States without receiving ma terial damage. It is not supposed the message has any concealed or ulterior purpose.

The Tribune's Washington special says the President stated that if the Senate admit Pinchback he will consider it equiva-lent to a recognition of Kellogg, and will continue to support him, but should the Senate adjourn without admitting Pinch back the President will construe it as indicat ing that the Senate is unwilling to recognize the Kellogg government, and he will consider himself bound to uphold it no longer.

d How t Spell Shakspeare's Name. [Courier-Journal.]

For one hundred and fifty years critics For one hundred and fifty years critics have disputed over the correct way to spell the name of Shakspeare. The Troy Times thinks that the reason that the Bard of Avon induced Juliet to inquire "What's in a name?" was for the purpose of discovering the correct orthography of his own name, and says that in some of the earlier editions of Shakspeare it reads "What's in his name?" or, in plain language, "How many letters are in his (Shakspeare's) name?" The spelling of Shakspeare's name has been The spelling of Shakspeare's name has been an orthographical puzzle that critics for a century and a half have labored over. Stevens, Drake, Dr. Johnson, Reed, Hazlett, Chateaubriand, Lamartine, Ulrich and Bodenstedt spell the name with ten letters, thus: Shakspeare; Chidworth, Guizot and Horn insist on eleven letters, thus: Shake-speare; while still others, though less*in numbers and ability, declare for only nine letters, thus: Shakspere. William ought to have known how to spell his own name, and, as he wrote it Shakspeare, we are inclined to give him the benefit of the ten letters as he

The execution of Samuel Beighley, for the murder of Joseph Kerr, in November, 1873, took place at Greensburg, Pennsylvania, yes The prisoner slept soundly Tuesday night and partook of a Learty breakfast on Wednesday morning, and received the sacrament from his spiritual advisers. Up to 11 clock he showed great composure, but at that hour he began to realize his approach-ing doom, and his well-sustained fortitude began to give way. Sheriff Griffey, acting under legal advice, decided to exclude the multitude, admitting only the deputy sheriffs and the reporters present, acting for the time being as deputies. At 12:45 Beighley was led, or rather carried, up the scaffold and after the reading of his confession by the Rev. Mr. Love, was asked by the Sheriff if he wished to say anything. He made no reply, but merely shook his head. The Sheriff then adjusted the black cap, and at one clock and eight minutes the signal was given and Samuel Beighley was ushered into eternity. The body remained suspended twenty-five minutes, when it was cut down down and given to his friends for interment. In the Senate vesterday consideration of the legislative appropriation bill was re-sumed, and after some amendments was read the third time and passed. vesterday was unexpected, previous advices having indicated that a long contest would finally result in the choice of some third man, as it did last winter when Mr. Washburn was elected to fill the vacancy. But Judge Hoar seems to have stepped out, or his friends were convinced that it was useless to support him, for Dawes was elected by a handsome majority. Mr. Dawes will make a more than average Senator. He is possessed of very fair abilities, and has had large experience in legislation. These advantages counteracted by a weakness that him to make an attack upon his party and its methods, while he lacks the courage to follow it up, and which at times causes him to veer rapidly between the extremes of independence and slavish partisanship. > MR. SENATOR DYKEMAN is half a Bourbon. He may forget at times, but he makes up for it by learning nothing. He thinks that the legal rate of interest is the vital question of this age, and he says that business and industry can't stand the present rate. Wherefore he urges the enactment of a law repealing the existing statute making good any rate contracted for up to a certain limit. It is strange that men seemingly possessed of brains enough to fairly represent the intelligence of a large community, should talk such rubbish of exploded folly as this. If money is needed it will command whatever rate of interest the degree of that need will justify, and all laws ever enacted can't pre vent it from being borrowed and paid for at that rate. We do not meen that occasional usurious operations may not come to light and grief, but that the great bulk of the money borrowed will be paid for at just such a price as the scarcity of it and the pressure of the emergency may dictate. Usury laws have been maintained for ages in every civilized country of the world, and with no more effect than if they had provided against rain or cold weather. They will not be obeyed when it is equally the interest, or or believed to be so at the time, of both borrower and lender to violate them. The English punished the Jews of Henry the Second's day for usury with a cruelty that would more than satisfy Mr. Dykeman. They were plundered mercilessly without law. as well as tortured according to law. Yet the spendthrift nobles that harried and robbed them, made them rich by paying usurious exactions proportioned to the chance of loss and suffering. If men want noney and will pay enough for it they will get it in defiance of law. Mr. Dykeman needs to learn that usury laws, regulations of interest, were never more than mere egislative freaks, never effective, never accomplished any political good, For the iew cases of interest reduced on judgments five hundred have always been paid in full. If every debt had to go through court for settlement, a restraint of usury might be made operative. But not one in five hundred does so. The principal and the interest are quietly paid, and Mr. Dykeman's law is regarded as indifferently as an Oce-anic taboo. Money's value is like any other value, fluctuating with the condition of the market, and the law that fixes its worth to the man that wants it is just as silly as a law fixing the price of wheat to a hungry family. It is all well enough if the family can buy, but if the owner wont sell at that price, the law starves the family. if it is obeyed. If the law could be enforced as Mr. Dykeman would have it, we should see money running out of the State to try to live with each other for two years of better men, and corruption seems to be a after marriage.

Hasty marriages and equally hasty divorce suits are the prevailing evils of the day. After some little difficulties one or the other of the parties rushes to an attorney, anxious to have a cause in court, and relate their grievances, and the result is a pander to the old war feeling in the North, but bulk of the people of the North have arrived at the conclusion that the war is over, relate their grievances, and the result is a breach that ought to be healed. The records will show that a large portion of the divorce suits are, brought by parties who have not been married two years. There is no injustice in compelling such persons to hasten slowly. The statute already requires an abandonment to be for a period failure to provide shall be for a like pe-

It was evidently the intention of the bill passed two years ago the "graces of oratory that a failure on the part of the husband to provide for his family should exist for a period of two years as shown by the sixth cause for divorce. But by some means the same provision without the specification of two years became attached to the fifth specification of causes for defect

> The other parts of the bill contain some wholesome provisions relating to the publication of notice in daily papers, and requires proof that copies of the paper are mailed to the defendant, if the residence is known, etc. The great bugbear and scapegoat used to be the omnibus clause, and it was thought if that was struck out the odium of our divorce law would be removed. The fact is that not more than divorce in two hundred was ever granted under that clause The remedy must be found in other pro visions, and if there is not to be a general trimming out of the causes for which a divorce may be granted, let us at least have the bill proposed by Mr. Kenneday.

SOUTHERN AFFAIRS.

Bad Course for the Republicans-Ar Attack on Gen. Coburn.

Washington Correspondence Pitteburg Leader. All of the proposed action upon the part of the Republican majority on Southern affairs is bad. I have had talks with many leading Republicans, and few of them will deny that the conservative Legislature in Louisiana was legally elected. Ex-Gov Standard, of St. Louis, and men of his class say there is no doubt about it. If the best men so believe, and yet act with the majority in countenancing the present fraud in that State, then they will court a political death that will be without resurection. of Indiana, is chairman of th committee that went down to investigate the state of political affairs in Alabama. Lut trell, of California, independent in politics, who was on the committee, said that throughout the whole trip Coburn sought only after testimony that would cover up Attorney General Williams and Congress man Hayes in their infamous misrepresenta what has taken place State. Luttrell is at open war with Coburn and he says boldly that if an honest investi gation were made into the political affairs of that State, the Attorney General would be impeached and little Hayes would be expelled from Congress. He said that almost the only testimony taken by the committee was that of defeated political candidates and ignorant colored men. The testimony of men of character and social standing was gnored unless it coincided with Coburn's desires. In many instances they could come incidentally upon the most telling facts against Hays and his crowd, but in nearly every instance they were passed over. They found plenty of evidence that the Govern ment bacon shipped into the State for the relief of the sufferers of the over-flooded districts, was largely used for political pur-poses, in districts remote from the devastated region. They also found that the stories of intimidations at the polls had two sides, and that there was as much blame upon the one side as the other. But none of this will Coburn's report. work of his masters well. He will even out-do Attorney General himself, a hitherto supposed impossible feat in the manufacture of

The people are sick and tired of this op pression of the South. In every Southern State where the rascally carpet-baggers have been driven out, peace and order reign to the same extent as in any Northern State Virginia, North Carolina, Georgia are now well governed, and the problem of the Southern troubles will be settled when their best men hold the reins of State government. What Mexico May Be to Us. [Correspondence New Orleans Times.]

As you have probably heard of the long ending contract for building a railroad 850 pending contract for building a railroad 850 miles long, from Leredo, on the edge of Texas, to Leon, 283 miles from this city, has been signed by the President. The building of the route from Leon here will be in the hands of a different company. Plumb's contract has not yet been pushed through the Mexican Congress, and it will probably be a year before this can be done. Besides, it will not be easy for him to commence building not be easy for him to commence building until Leredo is in railroad connection with the other railroad systems of the United Staes. It will be five years at least before Staes. It will be nive years at least before one can jump into the cars at New Orleans, and ship without trouble by land to this city. But when the time does come, Mexico will stand, in the way of trade, as Canada does to the United States. There is no good reason why the demand from the States for $150,000,000 of foreign sugars and coffees should not largely come from this country, not to speak of various other commodities. not to speak of various other commodities, and be paid for in American fabrics and products. Mexico, at present, is too nonexportative to think about buying American meats and breadstuffs; but when she finds it profitable to export sugar and coffee, she will do as every other country does—go to the cheapest producer, instead of raising it Squandering Lives.

[Correspondence of the Cincinnati Enquirer.] He was arrested next day at Marysville with the crimson testimony of his hideous sin still fresh upon his garments, by Captain John Dye and young Dr. S. M. Musgrove, ac-companied by the Sheriff of Union county and the Marshal of Marysville, to whom he that famous order "to rush around among had confessed all. It is worthy of observing in this connection how accurately, even to the minutest details of dress, had the image of the monster been stamped upon the poor child's memory. The patches of flossy hair on his chin, the frayed blue ends of his gray scarf, the thread-bare patches on his coat the even the grease spots on his hat, she recollected and described. It would have strange, indeed, if he had succeeded in eluding justice, after so accurate a description of his dress and person had been telegraphed all over the country.

On the second charge, in substance that from his weak hand just in time, Ullery's days might have been ended then and there, He was offered counsel and refused, confess ing again the heart-sickening details of his crime before the concourse of maddened peo-ple. It was a fearful struggle to get him back to the fail: but Sheriff Ganson adopted the excellent expedient of swearing in every man who showed any anxiety to get at the orisoper, as a special constable, "to maintain he peace and dignity of the State of Ohio.' So they finally got him into his cell, shaking in every limb like a hunted and captured animal and whining, 'O, don't kill me! pray, don't kill me! for God's sake don't

That was Thursday morning, and on Thurs day night about 11 o'clock lynchers entered the court house yard, at least three hundred strong, and all masked. They were a mere unorganized mob, however, surging, raging and swearing without a leader. Ere they and his wife, in return compliment for the had demanded the prisoner twice Shertff

> SUDDENLY FLUNG OPEN THE JAIL DOOR, And facing the crowd, with a heavy Colt revolver in each hand, exclaimed: "I give you all just five minutes to clear this yard." And they all cleared. You see no man had ever been lynched in that town, or hung in Champaign county for more than half a cen-tury and they didn't know the right way to nanage such matters.

But there was one man in town that night responding to the toast that has just been who did know a good deal about lynch law announced, permit me, in such language as I am able to command, to thank my friends for the very high honor you have conferred and vigilance committees, and who was not with that crowd on Thursday night. man is Fernando Stone, now a hardware upon me to-day in the Senatorial contest that merchant on North Main street, formerly a miner and an influential man in the far West. Stone is a man of great size and supported by warmer and better friends than I was, [renewed applause] and to their strength and was for years the captain of zeal in my behalf, and not to any inherent strength of my own, do I this day owe the

A VIGILANCE COMMITTEE IN MONTANA, Who hung men on the most approved scienific principles. It is not absolutely certain, but it is pretty generally believed, that Fernando Stone was at the head of the Sunday morning movement—one of the best organized affairs of the kind on record.

Nobody supposed on Saturday evening hat any efforts would be made to take the prisoner from his cell. The Sheriff went home early, for his little daughter was dangerously ill; but he left orders to keep watch all night at the jail, and to send for him if anything should happen. Ullery was placed anything should happen. Ullery was placed in a strong iron cage within an upper front coom in the southeast corner of the jail, and that room had double doors-the inner one of heavy iron bars, the outer one of massive oak boards, iron-bound, with immense locks. The jailor's family slept below, and the guards watched above in a room next to the prisoner's cell.

The streets were great sheets of ice that night, the sky clear and frosty, and the town perhaps, unusually quiet after the recent excitement. By eleven o'clock lights were out all over Urbana, save a solitary gleam of a lamp in the room where the jailor, with three guards,

KEPT WATCH OVER A WORTHLESS LIFE. When the town-clock boomed out midnight the moon was very clear; and the sleepless prisoner may have been able to look from his window on the Public Square, some hundred yards away, with the gigantic fig-ure of its bronze soldier-sentinel casting a friends, you do not expect me to engage in guomon-shadow on the great white dial-plate any statement of political principles. From of the square below. The shadow lengthenmy youth up I have been a member of the ed and lengthened till the fantastic silhouette of the bronze-soldier's head stretched to fundamental principles. And if I have any the very curb-stone of the square on the east, record at all in connection and was broken up into an irregular patch rd at all in connection the political affairs of country, it has been in the attempt of darkness by the heaped-up ice in the frozen gutter, The clock struck two to enforce those fundamental principles, and to apply them to the princi-pal operations of our Government. In about that time; and a watchman, Levi Dunman, passed by the Court house to the square. His solitary, stalwart figure might have made the prisoner's heart beat more easily, for he now saw in the policeman only a protector. The figure crossed the square and got its shadow horribly mixed up with the shadows of the brass soldiers and finally disappeared around the opposite corner, trailing its shadow behind it. The clock struck three; the voices of the guards in the next room became hushed; the light that streamed under the prisoner's door from the lantsrns without became dimmer; the head of the sentry's shadow began to poke itself into the lower windows of the house on the east side of the square. And at last the moon dropped behind the town, and the great shadow of night came over every thing, and the brass soldier's head alone became Governor Hendricks to his feet. He was distinctly visible against the sky. Perhaps the prisoner wondered why that watchman hadn't come back. That watchman was tied hand and foot before the clock struck four. and its tones had not died away before the prisoner's heart must have leaped into his mouth with fear. The alley in rear of the Court house was echoing the SOLID TRAMP OF AN ORGANIZED BAND OF MEN. Before the guards were awakened from their doze the Vigilants were at the door below-thirty-two black masks, and one white one. The white mask led. Six carried a heavy oaken beam. "We want the prisonsaid the White Mask, through a speaking trumpet. No answer. "Numbers One, Two, Three, Four, Five and Six step to the front," ordered the White Mask.

The battering ram was carried to the door. and the prisoner again demanded in vain. Then the door was driven in, with its frame, by one vigorous blow; and fifteen maskers went up stairs to encounter the guards. They were overpowered and bound almost instant-ly, and the leader called again:

"NUMBER SEVEN!"

Number Seven immediately placed a cold chisel against the outer look of the prisoner's cell. Then Number Eight was called, and stepped out with a sledge. In five minutes the prisoner was dragged out of his cell, bound and carried down stairs. He uttered bound and carried down stairs. He uttered but one hideous, long-drawn groan of fear when they dragged him out of the cage. We antime a number of the band had posted themselves as guards at all the entrances to the court yard. One ran across the road to the hat store and returned with a dry goods box, which he placed under a magnolia tree

To this the prisoner was brought and placed standing upon it with the noose round his neck, while the leader pulled out his watch, a handsome gold timeece, which gleamed in the light of the lantern he bore, exclaimed,

PRISONER, YOU HAVE TWO MINUTES TO PRAY. Then Number Nine climbed the tree, fastened the other end of the rope to a strong forked branch. The prisoner moaned out, "Oh, Jesus, have pity on my soul," and relapsed into silence. Then the six men reappeared with the battering-ram; the leader gave the signal, "One, two, three;" the box was knocked from beneath the wretch's feet; the body turned round once or twice in the air, and the world was morally cleaner than it had been sixty seconds previously. To enter the yard, burst in the jail-gate, and cell-doors, overpower and bind the guards, bind the prisoner and hang, occupied

ONLY THIRTEEN MINUTES,

Showing what an excellent thing a Montana education is. A crowd had by this time collected, and attempted to enter, but were driven to the other side of the street at the muzzles of thirty-three revolvers. Fifteen minutes later, the leader called the roll by numbers, to which every man answered 'Here," and the band marched off, two by two, with the white mask at their head, the same way they had come. None dared to follow them.

About 2 o'clock the body was buried, the afternoon inquest having resulted in a satisfactory verdict of "death by hanging, at the hands of parties unknown." It is said that several of the Vigilants were themselves on the Coroner's jury. The body had not been buried six hours, when some medical ghouls dug it up, in spite of the Sexton, put it on a sleigh, and were just about to drive away when the police came up on a run. only caught one man, however-a handsom ittle man, with black eyes and black side whiskers, who said his initials were "T. There is no excitement in Urbana over the event. The Court House looks as quiet as usual, and no crowds have gathered even to behold the scene of the tragedy. But the whole town wears a broad smile of compla-cent satisfaction, and tramps have not been recently seen in the vicinity.

THE ATLANTIC GARDEN.

Arrest of the Proprietors for Maintain

The revelry by night at the Atlantic Gar den has reached such an unbearable point that the citizens in that neighborhood will stand it no longer, and have notified officer Campbell that they will aid him in prosecuting it out of existence. To-day Campbell initiated proceedings against Anton May, the proprietor, for maintaining a nuisance. The affidavit sets forth that the defendant permits intoxicating liquors to be sold in a disorderly manner at his place of business, and also carries on and permits to be carried on dancing, by males and females of evil reputation, at all hours of the night, to the injury and annoyance of property holders in that neighborhood.

The witnesses summoned to testify as to the character of the establishment are John Inlow, Dan. Kiley, Wm. Gipe, Chas. Asmus, Duncan McDonald, John Scantlin, Arthur Bennett, Michael Ward, Frank Means and Hans Jacobson.

This is a move in the right direction, and other places of like resort should be served in the same manner

During the year just closed we have given relief and a temporary home to between 300 and 400 homeless, sorrow-stricken and often sick women, children and young girls. keep them as long as is necessary for the recovery of their health, and until they can find homes where they can be self-support-ing, or are returned to the homes from which sorrow and shame have driven them. We have been compelled to practice the most rigid economy, yet with it all we find ourselves for the first time in our seven years' nanagement of "The Home for Friendless Women" in debt, bills due, and no funds to pay them. We have received nothing as yet from the city fines; they are still in litigation. Hope deferred has made our hearts sick, but we do not intend to cease trying to get the fines. unless compelled by law to do so. We have not received the proceeds of the Policemen's stall, as stated, by mistake, in the papers. We desire to return thanks to the Commissioners of Marion county for fifteen cords of wood and six tons of coal. Also to our kind friends in the city, merchants, grocers, coal dealers, ladies and many others, who have desired not to have their names mentioned, without whose aid we would "have been much more in debt than we are. Their timely supply furnished garments and meals that we could not afford to buy. They have cast their bread upon the waters. May it return to them before many days. On behalf of the Board of Managers of the "Home for Friendless Women.'

Neatly Confidenced.

Yesterday afternoon Dr. McKinstry, of Huntington, student at the new Medical College, violated decorum by smoking in the Criminal Court froom while the court was in session, and for this he was sharply reprimanded by Judge Jordan, and dismissed with the injunction to be more careful in the future. The young doctor was delighted and skipped down the stairway in high glee, but he barely reached the street before some one slapped him sharply upon the shoulder and surprised him with the information that the court had entered a fine of fifteen dollars for contempt, which he must pay or go to jail. Without a word the money was paid over to the supposed bailiff, who in reality was a fraud, and the amount, as it happened, exhausted the last cent the young doctor had with him: besides it changed his note of glee to one of sorrow. The confidence trick was not discovered until the publication in the morning papers that McKinstry had been fined fifteen dollars for smoking in the court oom,-a piece of news for Judge Jordan, and additional proof that the ways of some men are bad.

Arrest for Violation of the Bankrupt Law.

Bernard Behrenz, a grocer doing business on Davidson street, near New York, was ar. rested last evening by the Deputy United States Marshall, on a charge of violating the bankrupt law. On Monday last Behrenz went into voluntary bankruptev and his creditors allege that he was endeavoring to defraud them by failing to include all his property in the schedule filed. His creditors are mostly South Meridian street merchants who allege that Behrenz obtained his goods from them by misrepresentations as to financial standing. Although the defendant was quite ill the officer insisted on his removal to the station house, where he is now in custody. His condition was such this morning that he was unable to communicate intelligently, and so his side of the story can not yet be given to the public. A preliminary hearing is set for this afternoon before Commissioner Bixby. Major Gordon prosecuting the case. The defendant will be represented by attorney

The Central Engine House.

To-day the Central Tower fire boys moved into their new engine house on East Maryland street, at the junction of the first alley east of Meridian street, and this afternoon the event was celebrated in ample form. This house is on the same general plan with the Sixth street and West Washington street houses, but hardly so convenient, save in the arrangement of the first floor, the front room of which is large and of easy access with engine from the street. The main sleeping-room up-stairs, and the readingroom have been carpeted in bright colors, and neat bedsteads, handsome chandeliers, and center-table gives a very cosy and comfortable look. As per arrangement now, this of the little Latta.

Hopkins's Asininity.

That screed of Representative Hopkins, ade to the Legislature yesterday during the ballot for Senator, should go down to posterity as evidence of the straits to which politicians are sometimes subjected. Here

GENTLEMEN-It is proper I should give an explanation of my vote in the Senatorial election now before us. My obligations to my constituents were to support the Democratic platform; to the party, to support a man for the United States Senate standing upon it; to the caucus, to vote for Mr.
McDonald. The greenback plank of the platform was adopted by the caucus. Mr.
McDonald was nominated upon that issue. This arrangement placed the obligation upon Mr. McDonald to accept or reject under it. He chose to do neither; but, to use his own equivocal language, "I stand upon the platform as I understand it." The late The late canvass was made mainly upon the green-back issue before the people. Mr. McDonald known to be a hard money Democrat of he old school, and believes the greenback arrency unconstitutional. Yet in the face f these facts the Democratic cancus ominated him. If they choose to stultify themselves before the people, I propose to have no hand in it. I had supposed the party intended to carry out the platform we were elected upon. I know my constituents expect it. I am not prepared, nor do I exect to participate in perpetrating a flagrant eception upon them. Nor do I think the Democratic party, as such, in its present temporary success, is able to defend itself of this outrage upon the masses of the people he whole canvass was a fight between the people on the one side and monopolies upon he other, it is so still, and if the Democratic party join hands with Wall street, as at present indicated, and against the masses I do most respectfully step aside or bolt (if you hoose to call it by that name,) choose to stay ith my constituents, the working people of my country. Their interests are mine, with them I have been identified for half a cenary, I will not desert them now, with them stand or fall, and cast my vote for Joseph McDonald under protest for United States enator. The Ends of the Propria Personæ. The counsel in the great trial will not be apt to get rich, whatever the result, though they will certainly accomplish an extensive reputation. The New York Star assumes that perhaps there will be a disagreement of the jury, and sums up the results in that event as follows:

First—as to Tilton, he will be where he is now—utterly ruined, played out, with none but his male Moulton and a few females to comfort him.

Second—As to Moulton, he, too, will be in a box. The Robinsons go their way, and the Woodruffs theirs. Where, then can Moulton Third-As to Mr. Beach, he has said that he hadn't received one cent for his services. He will simply have lost time—or nothing. Fourth—Judge Fullerton, being paid by Moulton's friends, is all right. Judge Morris, having taken a risk and a mortgage, is also all right, and General Pryor, being brought into prominence, is also all right.

Fifth—As to Mr. Beecher, he certainly won't be helped by a disagreement, and just as certainly he won't be hurt. His church stands—with Moulton's and God's consent and stands by him. His paper is improving every hour. His friends are more numerous and more loyal, and he is forever freed from the grace, mercy and peace gang at $5,000 an attribute. Sixth—As to his counsel. Evarts and Por-ter are paid sums fitting the ability, skill and time required. Tracy, Shearman, Hill and Abbott are paid expenses only, and in the instance of Shearman not a cent. CELEBRATED MICHIGAN FLOUR
